

A story of holding on to an unhealthy relationship

Do you think it's fair that you haven't talked to me in days. I thought if you loved someone you wouldn't want to make them feel this way, maybe I was wrong since you make me feel like this so often. And after all, you do seem to utter the words "I love you."

Do you think it's fair that I gave you a second chance and now you're doing everything you said you wouldn't.

Do you think it's fair that I'm so forgiving when you can never seem to let the small things go.

Do you think it's fair that no matter what you do to me I'll never be mean to you, like you are to me.

Do you think it's fair that you don't treat me with kindness, doesn't everyone at least deserve that...

Do you think it's fair that I've spent everyday loving you, when you can never spend one day just loving me.

Do you think it's fair...?
